

RE : BuildTechAsia 2012

BuildTechAsia 2012 returned for the second year from May 15 to 17. Held at the Marina Bay Sands, the exhibition continued to serve as a premier platform for exhibitors and visitors to network with government officials and industry players for business opportunities in the region.

The exhibition presented the latest in technologies across varied segments of the building and construction industry – from the latest in IT and Building Information Modelling (BIM) concepts to the newest machines, building materials, and electrical and mechanical engineering processes.

BuildTechAsia 2012 was also held in conjunction with the Singapore Construction Productivity Week which was promoted the innovative use of technology and methods to improve construction productivity.